Facilities could be managed a lot better. Very all over the place.

There is no go to site or page on blackboard to show all assignments with due dates and when they're added there's no notification so we know when we're given a new assignment/project.

There's an application That we can only use in one class and we don't have access to the class during the rest of the week so it's difficult to get part of the project done. We have a lot of deadlines coming up and it's just a bit stressful.

Lack of equipment!

Organising groups and borrowing equipment is not easy at the end of semester struggling to pay for things as i didn't want to ask my parents for more money considering they are paying enough already.

Basically everything

5 final exams coming up

money is the main issue for me at the moment, and it influences everything as taking the bus, eating, buying materials for college cost a lot...

My FYP is driving me mad, so this really cheered me up

My major stress point it was to something to do with the deadlines of projects, because for a person who works and studies it is difficult to combine both. For that reason, most of the time it is stressful to have my project done on time.

Student helping out with other students years below them.

People holding the door open for you. You holding the door open for them and they thank you. Some people let you go ahead of them in the queue.

Understanding peoples struggle helped me with projects

no

a friend bought some materials for me because i didn't have money and another friend lend me some money that really helped on a week I didn't have any to buy food or take the bus.

Nope, those covered all the general ones.

lent me pen during an exam

A bus driver let me get in the bus without paying the fair.

Helped some students use computer programms they didn't know how to use.
checking the spelling for important documents for some friends.
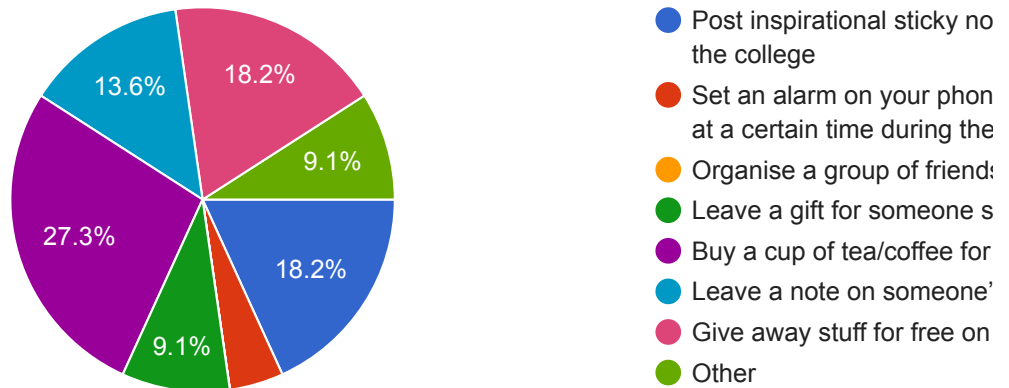

No, again you've covered the general ones

Borrow money to a friend who needed it. Let a friend to stay in my room until she got a place to sleep.

helping fellow student build there project at 4 in the morning :]

I think leaving books around for people to find and pass around is a nice thing.I think it's called book-crossing and i've done it before.

Do something for your department's technician or lecture that has helped you out.

Not really..

pay for someones food if there short the cash :]
ask if somone needs help if there carrying anything awkward or just helping them if it looks like they need it. :]

Have you any feedback for us about our idea? (4 responses)

interesting

I think it's a good concept, especially for those who are puzzle minded. but it might need to be broaden a bit. I myself was a tad skeptical when I was given a random bar of chocolate and a usb, mainly due to concerns about the health of the usb and whether or not it would infect my computer. otherwise it was nice to have some one randomly giving you something for free, especially when in fourth year a lot is demanded of you, so to get something without being asked to give something in return was a nice gesture, and lowed my stress levels to a bit more reasonable level. So thanks a mil. I needed that!

I think your idea is fantastic.

its good cause its an unexpected title for a project as sometimes kindness is underrated. :]

Has our suggestion inspired you to go do a good deed for someone? Why?

If it has can you tell us what you did? (7 responses) helped out a classmate on a project gave advice to people in the year below in my same course on how to survive certain modules.

I divided the bar I received among friends and passed on the usb with the file once I copied it to read myself.

Lending a hand for someone in need

i was questioning doing a good deed yesterday and i decided not to, but now that i was given this i feel next i will do the good deed!

Because it remains me how good you can feel when helping people and when people helps you.

it has inspired me to do a kind deed as it kind of motivates you to just do more kind deeds than you already have done :]

Finally, is there any advice a family member, friend or stranger has give you that has made a difference to you in your life?

Try not to live in the past. What's done is done and can't be changed. Look forward for yourself. :)

Treat others the way you want to be treated!

Memory's Of Future Past And Present

think before you act and only do to others what you would want to happen to you Never turn down an opportunity when it presents itself.

"don't procrastinate!"...that's the only thing I'm good at though!XD too many to count.

Always be yourself

think before you speak

Good things happen when you do not expect them. It is good to give away thing you dont need or use because there is people who really need it.

my mother just told me to be nice when i was young so i just did the best i could to be the best i can be :]
